Cambridge City Water Update

As we continue to recover from the flooding, we want to provide an update on the current boil order.

Before the boil order can be lifted, the water supply must pass a series of required tests. At this time, we have not yet passed one of the required tests at the well. The well is currently being resanitized, and additional testing will be required afterward.

Based on the current timeline, it will likely be at least the end of next week (August 28, 2026) before the boil order can be lifted.

We understand the inconvenience this causes and appreciate everyone's patience and cooperation as we work to ensure the water is safe before the order is lifted.
